THIS SUCKS.
 Filters can get sucked into the return and past the flanges.

THIS DOESN'T.
 Braces hold filters in place, making maintenance easier.

TECHNICIAN INVENTED. TECHNICIAN PROVEN.

HVAC technician Ray Valdez would often open a return filter grill to find the filter had been sucked up past the flanges. This was problematic because the air restriction could affect the efficiency of the A/C system and cause other system issues. To fix this, he would struggle to run two pieces of metal plumbers tape across the area and screw the two ends to make a brace. This took a lot of trial and error and often looked bad. When one of his customers told him he got cut by the straps when changing the filter, Ray was determined to create a product that solved the problem. He invented the magnetic extendable filter braces to be quick, easy and safe magnetic extendable filter brace.
